VOL. 102 NO. 1 | CAMERON, MILAM COUNTY TEXAS, THURSDAY MARCH 30, 1961 | 12 PAGES TODAY

LR Owners Will Meet

County officials have announced a meeting for property owners along the basin of Little River 7:30 p. m. Friday at Milam District Courtroom.

Officials said plans will be discussed on the speeding construction of flood - retarding structures in Milam County.

"We hope to have a large turnout of landowners including those affected on the San Gabriel and Brushy Creek Watersheds.

The meeting follows a session two weeks ago between Col. R. P. West, district engineer of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, Fort Worth, and about 20 landowners along Little River.

Col. West pledged his personal interest in rectifying channels along Little River and is now reporting outflow of water of Belton Reservoir to Radio KMIL.

Landowners had quizzed Col. West about causes of frequent overflows from Belton Reservoir.

Col. West recommended that landowners organize a levee district to help contain Little River and asked that landowners along Little River organize to boost their interests in the overflow problem.

This Is 102 With FML

New numerals would lead one to expect something "a little bit better" (some cereal made that famous) from this column. Despite advancing years, 102 will promise nothing more in sage advise, whimsey and philosophy than 101 gave you.

Recently we have been reading a learned little primer on use of the English language in writing. What discoveries! It was like a trip through never - never land or some place once visited, but vaguely remembered. The things we forget about English.

From the book's viewpoint, however, the question could be phrased: "The things Madison Avenue doesn't know about English!"

"The Elements of Style" by William Strunk, Jr., and edited by The New Yorker's E. B. White, has very little good to say for advertising jargonese.

If you pay much attention to TV commercials, you will know what the book means. Any similarity between English and Madison Avenue ad copy is purely Occidental.

102 - 102 - 102

Curious thing about the book, except for one chapter, is that it was written around World War I. After 40 years, it made the best seller list on the strength of E. B. White's commentary on it. Strunk was an English professor at Cornell. His attitudes on succinctness in English worries writers and leaves politicians aghast.

For those who are interested in grammar and all that "kid stuff" we highly recommend it. It is amazing how interesting the art of communication can be.

City Will Spray Ponds After Monday

Public Works Supt. J. B. Earle announced today that the city would begin the annual spring insecticide program Monday.

He told The Herald that city spraying equipment will go into action throughout Cameron.

Earle added that city workmen will assist residents in emptying containers likely to hold stagnant water and spraying ponds and other water pools that attract mosquitos.

"We're using a higher powered spray this year," Earle said. "It'll really do the job. We hope that Cameron citizens will co - operate as they have in the past in helping us stamp out areas of potential infestation."

Insurance Cost Down

Eanes Urges Fire Safety

Fire Marshal John Eanes appealed for continued help in keeping fire loss of life and property down in Cameron and Milam County.

Speaking before the Cameron Rotary Club, he cited the fact that Cameron has gained a 15 percent credit in fire insurance ratings because of fewer fires in recent years.

He urged Rotarians, other civic clubs and the people of Cameron to join with Cameron Volunteer Firemen in organizing for catastrophes such as tornado, flood or Civil Defense emergencies.

Introduced by George Childress, Eanes described fire losses in recent years which showed: 1948, $72,000; 1952, $109,000; and 1954, $42,000 in losses.

He said the Cameron Fire Dept. has kept the insurance down because of its high standard of training and performance which includes inspection of hospitals, sponsoring fire prevention contests in schools and fire drills.

He said downtown wood buildings, narrow streets, overhead wires, and past fire history all affected the "key rate" which determines much of the cost of fire insurance.

Fire marshal for 15 years, Eanes said fire prevention is the answer to Cameron's increasing credit on fire insurance and that fire prevention is up to the individual.

"The Cameron Department has four trucks, two paid drivers and 42 volunteers who are available when you call them to duty.

Cameron has come from a 15 per cent penalty to a 15 per cent credit due to the work of volunteer firemen who have helped hold down the fire losses here.

"If you need help in time of emergency," he concluded, "just dial OX 7-2121. And you'll get it!"

Library Planners Outline Research

The building committee of the Cameron Library Planning Board is expected to report out recommendations on the size and type of library in about two weeks.

E. A. Perrin, Planning Board chairman, announced the approximate schedule as building committee members were studying materials from the University of Texas.

Perrin said he would call a meeting of the 90 - member Planning Board as soon as recommendations were forthcoming from the building group.

Committees on public relations and out - of - town donations have also been functioning.

Perrin said all three committee chairmen will report to the Planning Board at its next meeting.

The Planning Board chairman said the planning stage for the building will take the longest of any of the program except raising donations.

"But we want to have the building and its design clearly worked out before we head into the major fund drive," Perrin said.

Interest in the project continues to be high, following action by the city, school and library board officials in establishing a library site, marked by a large sign, on E. Fourth St.

Interest in the building has spread from Austin and Houston across Central Texas. Several architects, equipment distributors and library suppliers as well as professional librarians from Austin have inquired about the Cameron Library drive.

Storage Loan Program Told For All Farms

COLLEGE STATION — Secreatay of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has taken action to modify down - payment provisions of the farm storage facility loan program, reports the USDA. Purthe President called for in his message to Congress on farm program proposals, is to encourage storage of grain on farms and strengthen economic activity in farming areas.

The new provisions will enable farmers to borrow up to 95 percent of the outlay for farm storage facilities which cost 40 cents per bushel or less to build. Previously, loans on these types of structures were limited to 80 percent of the cost.

For facilities costing more than 40 cents per bushel, farmers may borrow up to 40 cents per bushel or 80 percent of the cost whichever is greater, but not more than 50 cents per bushel of capacity.

These loans are made at 4 percent interest and run for five years from the time the loan is taken out. They may be repaid in four annual installments, with the first installment due on the first annivesary of the loan. Since the program started in 1949, 135,991 loans totaling approximately $149,196,000 have been made for storage facilities with a total capacity of about 546,380,000 bushels. Loans outstanding at the end of January amounted to $43,799,000 with $105,399,000 loaned to farmers having been repaid.

According to the USDA, approximately $40 million will be spent by farmers for storage facilities under the broadened program. This will give added stimulus to the general economy because of the increased demand for steel, wood and other building materials.

Rockdale Man To Head Committee On Sales Tax

Boswell Newton of Rockdale has been designated Milam County chairman of the "Citizens for a Sales Tax" campaign, DeWitt Hicks of Waco, State Senatorial District No. 13 chairman, announced this week. Newton will direct activities in Rockdale, Cameron and other towns in the county.

The county chairman said an educational campaign would be launched in this area to acquaint the people with the need for a broad - based tax to solve the state's financial problems and why a retail sales tax is better than any other type of tax.

"The State is $63 million in debt, " he said. "To cover this deficit and also to meet education, welfare and other needs, new revenue must be obtained. A retail sales tax is fair to everyone, and just as important it is the only form of taxation proposed that will raise the amount of money needed."

He urged all persons who feel strongly about solving the state's financial problems by the adoption of a retail sales tax to write to members of the Legislature.

The county chairman said that polls, conducted by newspapers, showed that the people over whelmingly endorse a retail sales tax. "In El Paso, the people favor a retail sales tax over other types of taxes by a majority of five to one. In Amarillo, the margin is four to one.".

A retail sales tax, he said, had been endorsed by many groups including trade associations, the Texas Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, county teacher units and Chambers of Commerce.

Peace Makers Symbolize Friendship

There are now 32 Kiwanis - sponsored peace makers along the three thousand mile Canada - United States border, each one dedicated to dramatizing the peaceful neighborliness of the two countries, according to LeRoy Massengale, president of the Kiwanis Club of Cameron.

The announcement was made at the time of the 1961 observance of Canada - U. S. Goodwill Week which is scheduled for the period April 23 - April 29. Canada-U.S. Goodwill Week, although originated by Kiwanis clubs on opposite sides of the common border, working in concert, are located at all principal ports of entry. Two of them are located away from the border - one in Washington, D. C. and one at the side of Mount Eisenhower in the Canadian Rockies.

The idea for the peace makers came from the erection of the Harding International Goodwill Memorial in Stanley Park, Vancouver, British Columbia. This monument commemorates a speech on Canadian - United States friendship made on that spot in 1923 by President Warren G. Harding, shortly before his death. Harding was a Kiwanian. In 1935 the first "peace maker" was erected on the Ambassador Bridge between Detroit, Michigan and Windsor, Ontario.

County Agents Notes . . .

Grain Sorghum Weed Control

By J. D. Moore
Milam County Agent

Good seedbed preparation prior to planting, along with cultivation and rotary hoeing is the safest and usually the cheapest way to control weeds in sorghum. The only chemical presently commercially available which can be suggested for weed control in sorghum is 2, 4-D. 2,4-D is not reccommended for pre - emergence weed control because of possible serious damage to the sorghum plants, nor is it registered for such use.

Post - emergence - If wet weather prevents cultivation, serious infestations of broadleaf weeds can be controlled by applying up to ½ lb. per acre of 2,4-D when the sorghum is 6 to 10 inches tall. The rate will vary with amine and ester forms and the manufacturer-s instructions on the label should be followed for minimum damage to the sorghum and maximum weed control. Applications made earlier or later than the 6-10 inch state may cause lodging and yield loss. It should be noted that 2,4-D appied even in the 6-10 inch stage of sorghum may, in some cases, increase lodging and delay maturity.

CORN WEED CONTROL

In general chemicals for weed control in corn have not been recommended and mechanical cultural practices are still advocated. However, some pre - emergence chemicals have seemed to be effective in limited trails in this state. Effective weed control in corn can be obtained through culbed preparation, adequate stands of corn along with timely and effective cultivations. Cultivate only often enough to control weeds and cultivate shallow to avoid pruning the corn roots. Rotary hoeing shortly after weeds emerge is a cheap and effective method which can be used until the corn is approximately 15 inches tall. When weeds cannot be controlled by this method, chemical weed control may be used to an advantage if proper precautions and safeguards are taken to avoid injury to near by crops and to the corn itself.

The farmer should know the precautions for 2,4-D and similar hormone type chemicals and be familiar with state hebicide regulations which can be obtained from the Commissioner of Agriculture, Austin.

Pre - emergence - 2,4-D applied at planting time will often destroy germinating seed of most annual grasses and weeds except large seeded annuals such as cockle bur which often comes up from deep depths. Only in extreme conditions where it is expected that weeds would come up the same time as corn and over grow the corn would pre - emergence 2,4-D treatments be suggested. Pre-emergence treatments will possibly give protection to the first cultivation or rotary hoeing. Use 1 lb. of 2,4-D acid equivalent per acre of 12 inch sprayed band. There is some hazard to the corn if heavy rains occur shortly after treatment. Do not use on sandy soils.

Simazine and Atrazine have looked promising for weed control in corn. Simazine has been tried two years at Angleton. Atrazine has been used in one year of trials at Angelton. Simazine and Atrizine were both used in corn weed control studies at College Station and Temple in 1960. Simazine gave good weed control at Angleton in 1959, but was less effective in controlling weeds in 1960 due to dry conditions. Simazine gave weed control at Angleton in 1959 all through the season and the plots were clean at harvest time. At College Station, Simazine and Atrazine gave good control in the sprayed bands, but the cultivated plots were clean when the corn was in the hard dough stage. At Temple, Simazine and Atrazine gave very good weed control. Simazine and Atrazine have not given any apparent damage to the corn in these studies. Reports from other states indicate that these materials have given good weed control and in most cases no damage to the corn. In some states the residual from Simazine has caused poor germination of crops such as oats following corn that had been treated with the material.

If farmers wish to try these chemicals on a portion of their corn acreage, contact Mr. Charnue, Waco, and request courses and literature on the material. This literature describes the materials and their methods of use. Directions on the label give registered recommended rates to follow.

It is reported that 80 per cent Simazine and 80 percent Atrazine will retail at apprxomately $3.19 costs, potential corn yield and possible advantages of the chemicals must be considered. In 1959, a 2 lb. rate of the technical ingredient at Angleton gave good weed control on clay loam soil. Note, to apply the broadcast spray during or immediately after planting would require 2½ lb of the 80 per cent material to get 2 lb. of active ingredient applied. Again, the manufacturer's drections should be followed in using these chemicals.

Post - emergence – Atrizine and Simazine are registered for late post - emergence use but data is not available under Texas conditions.

Chemical weed control with 2-4-D is especially hazardous in cotton growing areas. In emergency situations where possible damage to cotton is not a factor, 2,4-D may be applied when the corn is 6 to 36 inches tall. The spray should be directed with drop nozzles or extensions below the spray boom. There are some reports that there is little permanent corn damage resulting from an overall spray before the corn is 6 inches tall, but the sprays if at all possible, should be directed so that none of the 2,4-D strikes in the leaf roll of the corn. Use ½ lb. of the amine sale or ¼ lb. of the low volatile ester form of 2,4-D in 5 to 20 gallons of water per acre applied when the weeds are small and the corn is 6 to 18 inches tall. This treatment does not control annual or perennial grasses.

Precautions - do not allow the weeds to get more than a few inches in heighth before applying a spray as the more mature weeds are difficult to kill.

Some injury to corn from 2,4-D applications made at any time from emergence to tassling may occur, particularly if the treatment is applied during conditions favoring rapid growth. Avoid applications when the temperatures are high (85 degrees or more). Severe reductions in seed set may occur if aplications are made during the two week period just befor silking and until the silks are dry. Avoid cultivation for several days after treatment in order to reduce stalk breakage if brittleness develops. The 2,4-D sprays sometimes affect root development and may incresae the amount of falling down or lodging of plants.

Captain L. H. McNelly, Ranger

"Speak softly, but say something . . You'll be heard!"

One of Texas' most respected Rangers was described by historian Walter Prescott Webb as "a tallish man of quiet manner, with the soft voice of a timid Methodist preacher." It was said that as a scout during the Civil War Lt. H. McNelly had been able to disguise himself, successfully, as a woman.

But no one of Captain McNelly's special Ranger force would ever believe it. Some had known him since, at the age of 17, he enlisted in Co. F, 5th Reg., Texas Mounted Volunteers. Many of them were with him during the Civil War, at Val Verde, Brashear City, Lafourche, Mansfield, and knew all about this quiet man's contempt of danger. After the reactivation of the Texas Rangers in 1874, they saw him step into the sizzling Sutton-Taylor feud in DeWitt City, and chill it thoroughly. They went with him to the Rio Grande to suppress border trouble, and saw the border bandits simmer down to drowsy peace. This was the last service he was able to perform for his state. Not long after his outstanding border clean-up, Captain McNelly contracted tuberculosis and died, September 4, 1877, at his plantation home in Washington County. He was only 33 years of age.

Texas lawmen have always served their state well — as have Texas industry and commerce. Providing payrolls and community revenues, one industry has also provided the refreshment of moderation. In Texas the brewing industry "belongs." Brewers, wholesalers, retailers and the United States Brewers Association are working constantly in cooperation with today's lawmen, to assure the sale of beer and ale under pleasant, orderly conditions.

Use Dull Colored Sinkers

New sinkers fresh out of the tackle store often have a shine or glitter. Put them out in the weather a few days so the shine will be lost.

A shiney sinker can lead to a fish striking at the sinker rather than the bait or lure.

The multi - million dollars lost annually by the livestock industry because of animals being bruised is an unnecessary waste.

Polish Protects Hooks

You can protect hooks against rust by coating them with clear fast - drying nail polish.

Paint the entire hook with the exception of the point and barb, as paint on either will show the hooks penetration into the flesh of the fish.

Personal Resident Sales Subject To Special Tax

The sales of a personal residence is subject to special federal income tax return rules, A. P. Andrews, Administratie Officer of Internal Revenue Service at Temple reminded taxpayers today.

The general rule, he explained, is that any profit from the sale of your home, or any other personally owned item of property such as an automobile, furniture, securities or real estate is subject to tax.

On the other hand, federal tax law does not permit a deduction for the loss from the sale of a home or other personal assey which was not held for the purpose of producing income.

The Internal Revenue service representative added: "There is, however, a special rule which allows you to defer paying a tax if you sell your residence at a gain and within either one year after or one year before the sale, you buy and occupy another residence costing as much or more than the sales proceeds of your old residence.

"The same rule applies, if instead of buying, you begin construction of a new ome within one year before and one year after the sale of the old residence and occupy it within 18 months after the sale, provided that the new reisdence is already completed, or the cost of the portion completed equals or exceeds the amount received for the old one.

"If the sales proceeds of your old residence exceed the cost of your new residence, the gain on the sale is taxable to the extent of the excess. For example, if you paid $10,000 for your old residence, sold it for $15,000 and invested only $13,000 in a new one, you would pay tax on a gain of $2,000.

Laos Chrisis Here...

A curious amalgamation of interest is mounting against the aggressive movement of Asiatic Communism in Laos.

The Russians seem to share the concern of the West in Red efforts to displace the Loyalist regime of the Montana-sized nation.

The eight-power Southeast Asia Treaty Organization has been alerted; American Marines and Navy task forces are in strategic positions.

This followed President Kennedy's clear warning to Communists on both sides of the Bamboo Curtain.

Great Britain carried a cease-fire request to the Kremlin and was, by wire reports, favorably received by Russian diplomats.

The cease fire would set the stage for a conference of compromise about the strife-ridden Southeast Asian country.

It is out of Laos hands. With Laotian rebels drawing Communist Chinese support in arms and equipment, the Loyalist forces face a formidable, if not overwhelming, aggressor.

The situation in that tiny nation has been deterioating for months . . . perhaps years. Communist successes in that Southeast Asian penninsula stem from the Vietnamese wars of several years ago when French forces were pushed around in the jungles by Communist rebels.

Laos is a buffer state, much like Yugoslavia is in the European Balkans. Laos is also a powder keg. The prize, if it falls, is access to the tip of the penninsula and finally to the South China Sea.

Red China will press as far as she can. Russia, however, faced with the threat of American intervention, should hardly care to see another Korea.

Thus, Russia is likely to attempt assuasion on Red China with an even bigger prize—UN recognition as the reward.

It is curious and chaotic.

I Give You Texas

By Boyce House

Back in the mid - 1920's when I was an Eastland County editor, one could see jogging along a road a horse and buggy. The elderly driver would stop at a farmhouse to see if the family didn't want to have a photograph made. If so, he brought forth an ancient camera complete with tripod and black cloth. The man was John S. Blount of Cisco, one of the last of the old - time traveling photographers .....

More than 60 years before that time, in the vast, unpeopled spaces of West Texas, a long horseman saw an Indian pony Although he knew that the animal had wandered from a camp of redskins and that the warriors were not far away, the temptation to possess the wiry mustang was too great and he started to rope the animal.

But at that instant he heard a heart - chilling war whoop and, glancing over his shoulder, he saw a party of indians galloping toward him, the leader not fifty yards away. As the white man began his race for life, he heard the whistle of an arrow and felt a sting in his foot. Urging his horse to its swiftest pace, he dashed over the ground, the redskins strung out in a long line, single file.

A mile away stood twin mountains and his hope was that he could reach the valley and that there he would find the cowpunchers led by Tom Hart, for whom he was working. His horse swept through the opening between the mountains but the rider's heart sank as he saw no sign of his friends. Still urging his steed to its utmost, the pursued man had proceeded several hundred yards when he heard the crack of a rifle and then a volley. All unwittingly, he had led the Comanches into an ambush!

Tom Hart had seen the Indians pursuing him but instead of rushing to the rescue, Hart had concealed his men in the tall grass and dense undergrowth; then when the last savage had entered the defile, the Texans poured a fire so deadly that not a redskin was left alive.

The rider was Blount and when he was well past the mark of three score years and tnhee sat on the the porch of his little home and enthralled the young Eastland editor with episodes from a life bristling with adventure and hair-breadth escapades.

He was a lad of 17 when the event just described took place, southwest of Jacksboro. Then he told of the decoying of another force of Indians, his participation in this instance being intentional.

"We saw the war party, posted ourselves, then one of the boys rode out to where the savages could see him and they gave chase. He led them into the canyon. Well, sir if you visited that canyon today and look around, you would probably find about forty skeletons."

Senate Points Out Faith In Future

By Vern Sanford

AUSTIN — Texas Senate demonstrated its faith in the future by passing an appropriation bill without having the money to meet the obligations.

It calls for spending $2,496,685 during the next two years. It does not include teacher pay raises or medical care for the aged. Senators agreed that they needed to know how much new money could be raised before making decisions on these.

The measure calls for spending $376,000,000 from the already-overdrawn general revenue fund. That's $103,000,000 more than the comptrollers' estimate of general fund revenue for the next two years. This $103,000,000 plus a deficit that is expected to be about $63,000,000 at the end of this biennium, adds up to $166,000,000 in new revenue that would be needed to put the Senate appropriation bill into effect, as it is now.

PANEL OKAYS TEACHER RAISE

Senate Education Committee approved the Hale - Aikin school improvement program which includes an across - the - board $600 a year raise for public school teachers.

Sen. A. M. Aikin Jr. of Paris, sponsor, said he would not ask for floor passage of the school measure until the general appro- as well as a tax bill that would provide money for it.

Hale - Aikin program would cost the state about $72,000,000 a year and local districts about $18,000,000 a year. It would set the minimum salary for beginning teachers with bachelor's degrees at $4,014 a year.

HORSES LOSE RACE

Before a gallery packed with church people, Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry gave up the fight for a proposed constitutional amendment to legalize horse racing.

House vote against the measure was 143-to-5. Berry, seeing he did not have enough votes for passage, signaled his supporters to vote against it. This, he said, would avoid "putting them on the spot" for a lost cause.

Berry still hopes to get a referendum on the 1962 general election ballot to indicate public opinion on racing and parimutuel betting.

MILK BILL "SKIMMED"

One of the most controversial bills of the session, the milk importation measure, was passed by House by voice vote.

But before passage, opponents' amendments had skimmed off the cream of the bill the dairymen wanted.

As passed by the senate, the bill would bar out-of - state milk from Texas unless a Texas inspector certified he had personal knowledge the milk was produced under standards as high as those required in Texas.

Amendments took out the "personal knowledge" phrase and provided the milk could be imported on the certification of out-of-state health authorities after a Texas authority had found the out-of-state producer to be meeting acceptable standards.

Battle is not over since the difference between the House and Senate versions of the bill will have to be worked out.

TAXES DEBATED

House Revenue and Taxation Committee is exploring the possibility of raising money through a corporate income tax.

Testimony was heard on two bills. One by Rep. Tony Korioth of Sherman would repeal the present corporate franchise tax (for a loss of $48,000,000 a year) and substitute a three per cent corporate income tax (for a gain of approximately $96,000,000 a year.)

Also heard was a bill by Rep. Maco Stewart of Galveston which would levy a 10 per cent corporate income tax, repeal the oil well servicing tax and reduce the sulphur tax.

A bill to provide for a $1 charge for taking a state driver's license examination was passed by committee and sent to the House. It would raise an estimated $1,250,000 a year.

Meanwhile, Speaker James Turman, addressing a teachers' group said he felt Texas was close to resorting to the "last resort"--sales or income taxes.

War Hazardous To South

By Robert Stonedale
Cameron Herald Correspondent

MONTGOMERY, Ala - Despite being constructed on legal grounds in an attempt to provide a solution to problems which threatened to lead to civil war, the peaceable existence of the Confederate States of America is already threatened by the North.

Abraham Lincoln's government is illegally maintaining armed forces on Confederate territory and claiming sovereign rights over a people who have voted their determination to control their own affairs.

"The recalcitrant States must be forced to acknowledge their inferior position, has been the reaction of Charles Sumner of Mssachusetts and other Northern radical leaders to the Confederate request that Union troops withdrew from its territory.

"A hand ful of petty states without allies or, industry, cannot be expected to defy the Federal authority successfully," Lieutenant-General Winfield Scott said at the Union War Department last week.

This estimate by the North's leading military authority merits careful examination since the South may be forced to defend its liberty with the sword.

If all of the Southern States join the Confederacy, their number will amount to 15. Those which border the North; Maryland Deleware, Virginia, Kentucky and Missouri, have large Unionist groups within their borders. Because of this and geographical considerations, several of them may not join their Sister States or may give poor service if they do. Maryland and Delaware in particular are dominated by Federal military power.

Assuming however, that the majority of these states were to combine in common defense, they would still face frightening odds if war should come.

Although fire - eaters Rhett of South Carolina and Uancey of Alabama state loudly that the Yankee shopkeepers will not fight and that the South need only stand firm; the economic and military advantages enjoyed by the Union cannot be ignored.

The population of the North is approximately five times as great as that of the South; an advantage not to be taken lightly. The South's share of the vast store of gold and silver in the Union Treasury is in the possession of the North and can be used to hire mercenary troops abroad. There, poverty and great ignorance make American gold most attractive, and can guarantee huge accessions to the Norther arms.

Even though the South has supplied most of their treasure, no one who has ventured into business dealings with the Yankees would cherish any hope for its return, or that the legal claims of the Southern States would be honored by the race which glories in sharp practice. It would appear that a Southern army would be outnumbered by odds of at least five to one and possibly more.

The South is tragically inferior in manufacturing resources. There is not one large power or arms factory anywhere in Confederate territory. The foundry of Leeds & Company in New Orleans is the only one in the deep South capable of constructing marine engines and casting large iron structures. The great Tredegar Iron Works of Richmond would be available if Virginia should elect to join her brethren, but even the two together would make a poor match for the immense industrial establishments of the North.

The Confederacy then must be resigned to an alarming inferiority in numbers and resources.

To its credit are several important factors: The poeple of the South have no wish to force an alien way of life upon the Northern people. The Confederacy could this fight a purely defensive war and benefit from the increase of spirit that attends those who protect their homes and families against an aggressor.

In this age of cynicism it is easy to discount the moral force that justice and patriotism can lead a soldier's arm in the roar and flame of battle, but it was just such an advantage that enabled the Founding Fathers to break the yoke of British despotism only 80 years ago.

The South's native soldiery will fantry. Resourceful, bold and combative, the hardy youth of the Confederacy is unaccustomed to bow to any foe, personal or National.

LITTLE RIVER PHILOSOPHER

Philosopher Up In Arms Over Idea That Farmers Write Their Own Farm Program

Dear editar:

I have seen some strange and hard - to - believe things come out of Washington in my time, but the one I have now found out about has bowled me over. That is, it would have if I hadn't been sitting down already at the time. These days, a man has to be in a position to handle any new idea and the best position I know is sitting.

At any rate, as I understand it, and I checked it in three different papers, even went into town then, Washington has come out with the proposal that the farmers themselves figure out the answer to the farm problem.

"Let the farmers themselves write their own farm program," is the way the idea goes and I don't mind admitting I'm in a state of shock.

Up to the present, one of the real and I thought enduring satisfactions of farming was the realization you could always explain away an unsuccessful year by saying: "What did you expect me to make, under the farm program we got? Them birds that write the farm programs don't know anything about farming. We haven't got a chance."

But now some smart alec has fed the President the idea that the farmers themselves ought to write their own farm program and I'm calling on you right now to help put a stop to it. It's the most outrageous thing I ever heard of.

You don't hear doctors asking patients to do their own diagnosing and write their own prescriptions, do you? You don't hear bankers asking their customers to set their own interest rate and borrowing limit, do you?

You let the government turn the farm program over to the farmers, and farmers then wind up in the same shape they're in now, and who're we going to point our finger at?

No sir, it's the government's job to figure out the farm problem solution. If us farmres could have figured it out, we'd have done it long ago. The tried and true method is for the farmers to create the problem and somebody else handle the answer. Everybody to his own job. This new idea is government interference at its worst.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

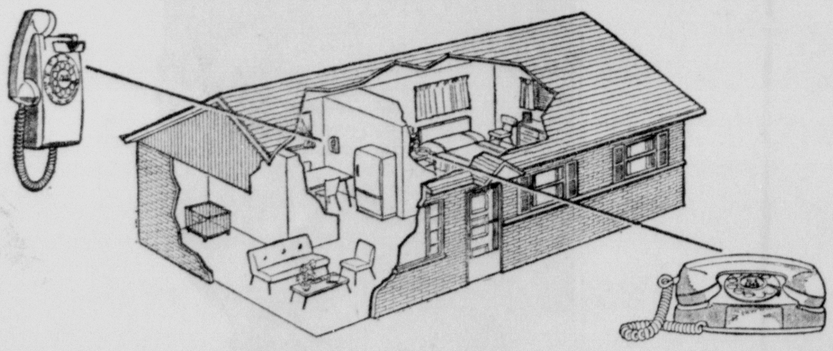
How their telephones save Mr. and Mrs. Neil Sauer 2½ hours a day

By DON DAVIS, Telephone News Writer

"I called a department store to order a place setting of china I saw advertised. I'm going to give it to a friend who is getting married."

"As a photographer, I have calls at home in the evening to arrange for props and models. So I use our Princess phone in the bedroom, where it's quiet."



The Sauers use their phones — a white Princess model in the bedroom and a beige wall phone in the kitchen—about 50 times a week to help them get things done.

As she speaks of the Princess, Mrs. Sauer's eyes light up. "It's so small and lovely. And the way the dial lights up is great." The Sauers use their bedroom phone when they want quiet and privacy. This phone also gives Mrs. Sauer a sense of security when she's alone at night.

Why not take a tip from the Sauers? Enjoy the convenience, pleasure and security of extension telephones. Just call the telephone business office or ask a telephone serviceman. Cost is low.

Outdoors In Texas

By Vern Sanford

Spanish mackerel and kingfish are the fish caught most frequently by trolling in Texas' offshore waters.

These fish usually show up around Easter and hang around all through the summer -- until September.

Just when they depart for warmer climite depends on how soon cool weather arrives. Last year mackerel and kingfish were caught off Galveston and Freeport as late as October 1.

There are many ways of catching these fish, but the most popular methods are trolling and plug or spoon casting.

Fishermen catch far more mackerel than kingfish because the mackerel move in closer to shore. There they are within easy reach of the outboarders.

You can also catch mackerel in the surf by fishing just beyond the last seaward breaker. Mackerel also are found in big schools around the ends of jetties and near the entrances to passes. Excellent mackerel catches are made from the numerous piers that extend out into the Gulf.

When it comes to using natural bait to catch mackerel, a peeled shrimp is hard to beat. Set your float so the bait will be suspended about three feet below the surface of the water. Be sure to use long wire leader because the mackerel's razor - like teeth can slice a gut leader like it was thread.

Outboarders like to troll or cast for the forktails. Trolling is done with hooties or small spoons. A hootie is nothing more than strands of sisal that flutter about the hook as it is trolled through the water.

When you locate mackerel, troll around the edges of the school. If you troll through the middle of the school, you might spook the fish and break up the school. If you're casting a plug or spoon, just drift along with the school.

Mackerel schools are easy to locate. Usually you'll see the fish rippling or breaking water. Or just look for a flock of birds working low over the water.

Kings Come Close To Shore

Occasionally kingfish are caught close to shore, but the best fishing is done miles offshore around the banks and the offshore oil rigs.

When trolling for kingfish, use a feather jig or a large spoon. Your boat speed should be somewhat faster then the speed for mackerel trolling.

Kingfish have a habit of following the boat. When you locate a school, you can keep the fish around you for a long time by trolling in circles. You can troll in and out of a kingfish school without worry of spooking the fish.

When you cast for kingfish, use a big spoon, a slow sinking plug or a float - diving plug. The plugs must be big and they must have stout hooks. Best colors for plugs are red, white, yellow and black. The yellow - black combination is most effective.

Don't go after kingfish with just a couple of plugs. Chances are you'll lose several plugs and even the plugs you don't lose will take a terrible beating from the sharp teeth of the fish.

I've seen wooden plugs raked bare of paint by kingfish.

Because of the kingifsh's razor-like teeth, be sure to use a long, wire lead.

Exercise great care when the fish is landed. Kings will flop around a lot in the boat. Their teeth can slash an arm or leg or rake the flesh off your fingers.

Play it safe and use a "tranquilizer" on a king before attempting to remove the hook from its mouth. The tranquilizer can be anything in the form of a club. A couple of blows on the head will render the fish helpless.

Most kingfish caught in the Gulf of Mexico are in the 10 to 15 pound class. Fifty and 60 pound kings can be taken, but these big tackle - busters usually are around the banks far, far offshore.

Mackerel Are Smaller

Average size mackerel run around a pound or two in size, but occasionally some six and seven pounders are caught.

When trolling, use a stiff action rod and a big reel that will stand the jolt when a big mackerel or a king hits.

However, if you're still-fishing, or casting and want some real fun, by all means use lighter gear. Bait - casting or salt water spinning rigs will do fine. Just make sure you have plenty of line on the spool, especially if you're after kings. They make long runs and they can melt line off the spool like hot butter.

Both fish are good eating although some folks shun kingfish as being too oily and too strong-tasting.

Both mackerel and kingfish require more than ordinary care in storing.

To keep the meat fresh, kill and bleed the fish as soon as it is caught. Then ice it down well.

Don't keep either fish on a stringer suspended in the water. They die quickly and the water will spoil the meat.

Since both mackerel and kingfish are oily fish, they are best baked or broiled. The meat isn't too flavorsome fried.

Big kingfish can be sliced into steaks. Kingfish meat also can be used to make tasty fish chowder.

Keep "Easter - to - September" in mind, for that's when the big and little forktails begin to show up. And remember that June, July, and August are the best months for mackerel and kingfish catches.

Mrs. Jackson Tells Health Program To St. Anthony Parents

The regular meeting of the St. Anthony's Parent - Teachers Club was held Tuesday at the Parish Hall with Mrs. Herman Hanel, presiding.

Mrs. Marie Jackson, county school nurse, was the speaker for the program. She explained about the school health program and answered questions asked by members.

Mrs. James Brock and Jim Vessels gave reports and it was announced that prospective members would be invited to the next meeting, April 18.

Mrs. Raymond McLeod's fourth grade won the attendance prize for the meeting.

Childrens Parties Fill Pre-Easter Schedule

Easter week has a deep religious significance for Christians throughout the world but for small children who can not yet comprehend the deep meaning of the observance, Easter means Easter Eggs and baskets plus a myriad of new and exciting variations.

Brightly died baby chicks catch the eye and heart of local children as they pass the Ideal Hatchery and Mrs. Leo Fuchs predicts that about 500 red, orange, purple and green chicks will delight Cameron children on Easter morning.

In addition to baby chicks, Easter morning will bring forth the traditional bunny rabbits and baby ducks plus the large cuddley stuffed animals and eggs of every description including plastic, hollowed, chocolate and gift filled. Following the new trend enterprising Marlow teenagers last Sunday died a white cat bright Easter green.

Cameron Couples Club were the first to observe the Easter traditions with an Easter Egg hunt on the grounds of the National Guard Armory. Three hundred and fifty carefully hidden eggs awaited 30 eager children. The eggs were a special delight, hollowed, colored and filled with candy, a toy chicken and grass. About 75 children and adults were on hand for the clubs covered dish supper inside the armory following the hunt.

Mr. and Mrs. Monroe Fuchs and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Eldon Batte were club hosts.

Local churches will also join in the Easter week parties for children. Primaries at the First Baptist Church had an Easter Egg Hunt Monday and beginners and nursery children will be fetted at 4 p. m. today (Thursday) at the church. Baptist YWA girls sponsored an Easter Egg hunt for Mexican Sunbeams Wednesday afternoon.

Methodist children have divided into three groups for Easter Egg hunts. Primaries met Wednesday afternoon at John Sumner Batt's Kiddy's Right on Country Club Drive and three year olds will meet Friday at the church. First Mthodist Kindergarten Departments will have their hunt 3 p. m. Saturday at the Frank Perrin residence on E. 10th St.

The First Presbyterian Church will have an Easter Egg Hunt Wednesday afternoon at City Park and Mrs. Erwin Slocomb will host First Christian Churcn younsters Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

Freshening Up Plugs

In a round of particularly fast fishing with fish that have sharp teeth, plugs may become quite battle-scarred. Carry along small bottles of model-airplane paint to touch them up.

The paint will dry in a matter of seconds.

TEXANS DON'T WANT...

...A FULL-TIME REPUBLICAN, for their Senator who would be unwilling to work with the Administration and unable to represent Texas effectively.

...A PART-TIME REPUBLICAN, who poses as a Democrat, but who supported the Republicans in 1952 and 1956 and openly boasts in 1960 of joining GOP leaders Goldwater, Bricker, Mundt, and Knowland in key Senate votes.

TEXANS DEMAND...

...A FULL-TIME DEMOCRAT, with a solid record of experience and accomplishment. An independent thinking man with no strings attached who can work closely with the Democratic Administration while maintaining the 'Texas position.' A man who will continue to deliver for Texas.
